

YOU CAN'T WORK IN A FACTORY THAT WAS NEVER BUILT.

Today, Americans are focused on the economy – and for good reason. With unemployment still high, creating jobs must be a top priority.

But the Environmental Protection Agency is rushing to impose costly and unworkable ozone rules – even though air quality continues to improve under the existing standards.

These unnecessary regulations would block any new manufacturing plant in nearly every county in the country. A study by the Manufacturers' Alliance says the new arbitrary ozone standards could cost as many as 7.3 million jobs by 2020.

Instead of killing jobs with more government regulations, Washington needs to help business grow our economy – so we can get America working again.

Call 202-456-1111 and tell President Obama we can't let the EPA destroy our economic recovery and put American jobs at risk.
